Aida Nadeem

Aida's best known in the UK from her collaborations with roots band The Angel Brothers with appearances at Cambridge Glastonbury, Larmer Tree and WOMAD festivals. Now you can look forward to a great show with Aida's very own band, "Out of Baghdad"

Frusion is now once again taking enquiries worldwide for this fine and unique artist.

Frusion music is proud to represent , Aida Nadeem, Denmark's leading exponent of "Arabtronica" her new project is entitled "Out of Baghdad" (formerly known as Ethnic Synthetic) a more modern roots based sound in a new collaboration with the renowned dance music producer Peter Mossman.

Aida's musical roots lie in her heritage as an Iraqi, steeped in the music of her region and now leading that music into areas previously explored by such luminaries as, Transglobal Underground and Zohar.

Originally from Iraq, but settled in Denmark as a refugee in 1991. She had her formal education on the bassoon for her last album Aida hooked up with Henning Flintholm a leading producer and musician in global dance music based in her adopted city, Copenhagen who helped take her music into a distinctly modern dance groove.

ambient synth sounds, a firm and funky African bass and 1001 other Arabian instruments, echoes of "The Arabian nights"

"Mixing Middle Easter traditions with the comtemporary sounds she has bee exposed to in her adopted home". ... "Aida's music draws comparisons with Natacha Atlas, Nitlin Sawney and Amina... Jamie Renton Froots 2003 (from a performance with the Angel Brothers & Satnam Singh London 2003)

Her latest songs were written during the recent conflict in Iraq and so, finally in Aida's own words

"The songs are dedicated to all those who believe as I do, in a world with no borders, no discrimination and no racism"
